++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Southeast dull with patchy rain. Elsewhere mainly dry, increasingly bright.

Today:
Southeast overcast with patchy light rain or drizzle. Northwest dry with bright and sunny spells increasing from the west. Elsewhere cloudy start with some drizzly shower, then dry with brighter spells developing for afternoon. Light north to northeast winds.

Tonight:
Most staying dry with clear spells. However overcast skies and patchy rain lingering across Borders, also perhaps Lothian. Winds light mainly from the northwest.

Sunday:
Fine, dry day for the majority with temperatures lifting a little from Saturday in plentiful sunshine and light breezes. Across far north and northwest cloud occasionally thickening to bring drizzle.

Outlook for Monday to Wednesday:
Fair, dry and sunny with light winds for most. However low cloud and patchy light rain expected across far north Monday, which feeds down the eastern coastal fringes from Tuesday.
